NEWS TO TRAVEL BY

Essential Philadelphia

Happy birthday America! We may be a little biased, but there's no better place than this city, where the country was founded, to celebrate the Fourth of July. This year, we're partying with parades, concerts and some spectacular fireworks. See page 8 for details. There's much more to celebrate this month, too. We're raising a glass to summer with great food at seasonal pop-ups (page 6) and counting our blessings with world-class (free!) art all around town (page 8). Tight on time? Here's a quick guide to a popular family-friendly riverside attraction.

90 MINUTES IN: Independence Seaport Museum

This site founded by J. Welles Henderson has been offering an insightful look at the region's waterways since 1960, when it was known as the Philadelphia Maritime Museum. In 1995, the museum took its current name and moved to its current location at Penn's Landing on the Delaware Waterfront.

Start inside at the exhibition "Patriots and Pirates," which tells the story of the U.S. Navy (and its encounters with buccaneers). From here, check out key artifacts, like the bridge from the U.S.S. Lawrence, which was built in Camden, New Jersey, just across the river. For something a little more hands-on, climb aboard Diligence, a 102-foot full-size model of the 1797 original schooner, and glimpse 18th-century life at sea.

Outside, you'll find the Cruiser Olympia and Submarine Becuna (pictured), National Historic Landmark ships that have been berthed at the museum since 1996.

Launched in 1892, the Cruiser Olympia is the oldest surviving American naval warship from its era and the oldest floating steel warship. It served as Commodore Dewey's flagship when he won the Battle of Manila Bay in the Spanish-American War. In her heyday, the Submarine Becuna (aka "Becky"), a WWII and Cold War-era submersible, patrolled the Pacific and Atlantic oceans, sinking 3.5 Japanese merchant ships and "eavesdropping" on Soviet submarines.

Correction: The Family Fun Guide incorrectly lists information for the museum. Admission prices are $17; seniors/ students/military $12; children under 3 free. Historic ships are open Th-Sa, 10 am-8 pm through Labor Day.

JULY 14: Bastille Day at Eastern State Penitentiary

This imposing historic prison—once the home of notorious criminals, like Al Capone—turns into the perfect backdrop for celebrating France's national holiday, but with fun and frivolity. Think "Edith Piaf" in drag leading fellow cabaret troupe members, Bearded Ladies, in an accurate retelling of the French Revolution, complete with "Marie Antoinette" letting the crowds eat Tastykakes tossed from the jail's ramparts above. After, revelers storm nearby restaurants for French-inspired food and drink. Free. 5:30 pm. 2027 Fairmount Ave., 215.236.3300, www.easternstate.org

'Tis the Season

From a time-tested riverside hangout to a rotating pop-up party, it's open season for these only-in-summer culinary hotspots.

Riverside Repast

Before Spruce Street Harbor Park and Blue Cross RiverRink Summerfest, there was Morgan's Pier (opposite), a bar and restaurant on the banks of the Delaware River that opens for business during warm-weather months. This year, the alfresco venue welcomes Chef-in-Residence Adam Lazarick, whose creations include out-of-the-box versions of classic comfort foods like Italian roast pork sandwiches and crispy chicken wings. Keep an eye out for special events like quizzo, bingo, educational workshops and live musical performances all season long.

Uptown Beer Garden

Going the Extra Mile

- » Independence Beer Garden. Savor delectable bites, delicious drinks and classic lawn games steps from the Liberty Bell. Carnivorous guests will appreciate ordering meat by the pound for the whole table. Forty taps of regional and domestic craft beers keep the good times flowing.
- » Haas Beer Garden at La Peg. The in-house restaurant of edgy theater company Fringe-

Arts adds an outdoor beer garden, where patrons take in views of the Benjamin Franklin Bridge while munching on lobster rolls, pulled pork and cole slaw. On Wednesdays, check out classic '90s action films, too.

- » SkyGarten. This German-style biergarten towers 51 stories above the city and offers views that will have your friends envying your Instagram feed as you tuck into pretzels, Bratwurst and—of course—cheesesteaks.

Old Meets New

FAMILIAR FAVORITES

Parks on Tap

On weekends through late September, Parks on Tap sets up in a different location, bringing food, drinks and a festive vibe. All you have to do is dig into smoked portobello bahn mi, beer can chicken and cornbread with hot sauce butter. This month brings the party to Shofuso Japanese House & Garden, Glendinning Rock Garden, Burholme Park and Pastorius Park. Proceeds go toward supporting the city's many public green spaces.

Pennsylvania Horticultural Society Pop-Up Gardens

Every year, PHS transforms empty lots into buzzing hot spots for tasty cocktails, inspired bites, cold brews and fun events, all against a verdant backdrop created by horticultural enthusiasts. This year, the fun returns to 15th and South streets, where The Royal Tavern and Friends (operators of popular eateries Cantina Los Caballitos and Triangle Tavern) dish up hot dogs and potato salad, plus inventive options like cauliflower hummus and buffalo popcorn. Over at uCity Square, The Jose Pistola's Group plates guacamole, grilled corn on the cob, and five varieties of tacos.

NEW & IMPROVED

Harper's Garden

With twinkling lights and flora, Rittenhouse Square becomes a dreamy backdrop for a laid back meal of hand-pulled mozzarella, Moroccan lamb meatballs and wild mushroom flatbread.

Uptown Beer Garden

Craig Meyers and Steve Lindabury, both of BRU Craft and Wurst, helm the kitchen of this favorite, which returns with updated décor, new events and six exclusive beers and ciders. Look for an expanded menu of burgers, pork sliders and hot dogs, plus crowd-pleasing nachos, crab cakes and pierogis.

GET CULTURED

Enjoy free or pay-what-you-wish access to some of the nation's most popular and renowned museums, including the African American Museum of Philadelphia and the Barnes Foundation (July 1), the Philadelphia Museum of Art (July 1-2), the National Liberty Museum (July 3) and the National Museum of American Jewish History (July 4).

LIGHT UP THE SKY

Comcast NBCUniversal and Pyrotecnico present fireworks that light up the skies above the city. The show begins at 9:30 pm July 4 on the Benjamin Franklin Parkway (as part of the Party on the Parkway). Official viewing areas include Sugar House Casino, One Liberty Observation Deck and Moshulu.

TAKE TO THE STREETS

The Historic Philadelphia Block Party returns July 3 from noon to 7 pm, when the area around Independence Hall becomes a sea of performances and tasty bites from food trucks galore. On July 4, the annual Independence Day Parade kicks off at 11 am, traveling from Independence Hall down to Front and Chestnut Streets.

PAY TRIBUTE

At 10 am on July 4, the Celebration of Freedom Ceremony kicks off the festivities by honoring America's everyday heroes with patriotic musical performances, speeches and a community awards presentation.

TUNE IN

July 1-4, several concerts have festival-goers dancing in the streets. At Independence Mall, groove along to gospel music and selections from Kimmel Center's Broadway program and the Philly Pops orchestra. On Benjamin Franklin Parkway, join thousands for Party on the Parkway, featuring Big Band hits, capped off with Grammy Award winner Pitbull.

LOCAL KNOWLEDGE

We're Going to Party Like It's 1776

On the Fourth of July, fireworks light up the sky in cities across the United States. But Philadelphia, the city where America was founded, is perhaps the most festive place to spend Independence Day. So how does Philly mark the birth of the nation? With the Wawa Welcome America! festival of course. Since 1993, this spirited celebration has showcased the best of the city on America's birthday, and this year is no different. Through July 4, more than 500,000 people descend on the City of Brotherly Love for tons of free, family-friendly fun all over town, including concerts on Independence Mall, Benjamin Franklin Parkway and the Delaware River Waterfront with musicians like Pitbull. Here's how to ensure you have a blast. And for complete details on all the action, visit www.welcomeamerica.com.

LIVING HISTORY

Historic Philadelphia's Once Upon a Nation program brings history to life through re-enactments, tours and storytelling.

Start at one (or all 13 for a prize!) of the Once Upon a Nation Storytelling Benches (below) scattered around the historic district for a quick journey back in time. Afterward, take the Independence After Hours tour, which includes dinner at City Tavern and after-dark entry to Independence Hall, where "founding fathers" discuss the creation of the Declaration of Independence. Cap the day on a Tippler's Tour, a popular Colonial pub crawl led by a knowledgeable actor in period garb.

Public Access

Philly is famous for its cheesesteaks and history. But this town is also a vibrant hub of art. And not just in the world-class museums or bustling galleries lining Old City. Creative expression literally paints the town with murals and dots the urban landscape with outdoor sculptures. In fact, Philly has more artworks decorating its public areas than any other city in the country, according to a Smithsonian-sponsored survey. City Hall even does double duty as a government building and an art gallery. To take in all the highlights, art lovers can simply stroll through town. But for a little more insight on what to see (all free!), read on.

CITY OF PHILADELPHIA PUBLIC ART

Iconic works of public art not to miss include those by renowned artist Claes Oldenburg—"Clothespin," "Split Button" and the most recent work, "Paint Torch." The 51-foot-high paint brush was commissioned by the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts for Lenfest Plaza to, as Oldenburg said, "celebrate a place where painting with a brush is really practiced." www.creativephl.org; www.pafa.org

CITY OF PHILADELPHIA MURAL ARTS PROGRAM

With more than 3,000 murals on display, it's no wonder Philadelphia is often referred to as the "Mural Capital of the World." Through this program, experienced guides lead a number of tours, but those wishing to go it alone can download a free podcast of the Mural Mile, a colorful walkable route of 17 murals in Center City. Most tours depart from the Gallery at Market East, Ninth and Market streets, 215.925.3633, www.muralarts.org

CITY HALL

The 19th-century building housing Philly's administrative quarters is itself an architectural wonder. But inside, gallery spaces highlight professional and emerging artists. Schedule a lunchtime tour or explore the second, fourth and fifth floors on your own. Weekdays 10 am-4pm. 1401 John F. Kennedy Blvd., Room 116 (enter at Market St. East), 215.686.8446, www.creativephl.org/exhibitions

Beach Bum

Philadelphia may not be near miles of white-sand beaches, but that doesn't mean beach lovers can't get their fill of sea-spray-inspired, sun-splashed fun. For a leisurely and welcome break from the heat of the city, head to (1) Sister Cities Park, where the 10-spout fountain offers a relaxing spot for cooling down and splashing around with the little ones. No summer day is complete without a frozen treat, and in Philly that means water ices. One favorite? (2) John's Water Ice serves up some of the city's finest summertime classics in three flavors: lemon-cherry, chocolate and pineapple. When a day trip is in order, the (3) Brandywine River over in West Chester delivers, with a popular hang-out for kayaking, canoeing or tubing down this picturesque waterway.

For the Girls

At (1) Talula's Garden, the adorable outdoor patio is enough to pull you inside, but it gets even better when you get your hands on a brunch menu. A serving of the sweet potato pancakes with candied pecans and whipped honey butter is a great way to start the ultimate gals' day. After, work off those extra calories at (2) Boat House Row along the Schuylkill River. These pretty-as-a-picture Victorian-style boathouses built a century ago make an Instagram-worthy backdrop for a stroll. Insider tip: A nighttime excursion, when the houses are lit up, is even lovelier. Cap off the weekend with a sweet treat at (3) Capogiro Gelato Café, where the frozen scoops are made with fresh, local ingredients in flavors like pistachio, mascarpone and fig, plus the classic stracciatella.

Old Soul

Those who appreciate the qualities of bygone eras have found a soul mate in Philadelphia. In the birthplace of America, old souls can go back in time to the country's founding by walking the narrow cobblestoned alleyways of (1) Old City. On (2) Historic Antique Row, you can take a piece of that history with you. Along this scenic stretch of Pine Street, the past takes center stage through a series of vintage clothing stores and antiques shops with beautiful storefronts. For a deep dive into all things classic, spend the day at Henry DuPont's (3) The Winterthur Museum. His former estate turned museum is preserved as it was during his time there, displaying the horticulturist and collector's massive trove of American art and furniture throughout the 175-room residence.
